HEAD MASTER'S ADDRESS

In writing a brief message to the members of the Class of 1958 for their Year Book, I should like to leave a thought or two upon which they may reflect when they open their GOTHIC in years ahead.

During the school year 1957-58 the world has come face to face with an age of science. Great talk and much writing have speculated in recent years upon man's entrance to outer space. This year has seen the achievement of these prophecies. The Russians at this writing have successfully launched two satellites, the United States (U.S.A.) has successfully launched one and has others in preparation.

There is talk of sending man to the moon and to other celestial areas. What the future holds in scientific achievement the Lord only knows. Man is experimenting; man had accomplished much; but how much farther he will go, only time will tell.

For young people preparing to enter the world of science or industry; for young folks about to enter fields of higher education, the opportunities are boundless. Obviously success will depend upon perseverance and application. Who knows but that among your group are boys and girls whose achievements may be recorded in history books.

There is a place in the world for each of us; the Lord provided for that. If man becomes puffed up by his achievements, he need only reflect that the earth and the moon are only small parts of the universe which God created, and over which He rules. The big problem for each person is to find his place in the world and fill it conscientiously.

Hence we suggest to our graduating young men and women that they keep a level balance in the life, that they practice the virtues they have learned at home, at church and in school; that they contribute of their time and talents to the benefit of their neighbor and their community; that they take advantage of opportunities afforded them. In short, we hope each one of you fills to capacity the place the Lord has provided for you during your span of life.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

JOHN FLYNN

We are gathered here today in this familiar Assembly Hall for the last time as members of the Brighton High School. Nearly all of us have been here now for three years and have collected many pleasant memories we shall treasure throughout our lives. There have been, it is true, times that have been trying, but we have solved all our problems and have completed our tasks here creditably with the help of our teachers and our parents. For all their cooperation, patience, and understanding, we thank them most sincerely; for their aid has prepared us for life's next adventure.

From this memorable last gathering we shall soon go our separate ways: some to business, some to the Armed Forces and others to institutions of higher education. Whatever our future activities will be certainly depends, in no small part, on what we have learned here at the Brighton High School. Day after day of continual training has resulted for us in a growth of character and in a perfection of skills and practices.

As we are ready to face another way of life, a wider life, we find ourselves in a unique position; for we as eager beginners will enter into a world that is also beginning a new era, the space age. While we have been living a sheltered, secure existence within the circle of our home and our school, graduates before us have used their knowledge effectively and their techniques proficiently to provide us with the kind of life we experience today.

Now adventure, as exciting as it ever was in the past, awaits us; for the missile and the satellite lead us to new planets to conquer. How much farther each one of us will carry forward and add to world knowledge of the space age depends upon ourselves. In America our Democratic way of life leaves each of us that choice to make. We know, moreover, that our freedom carries with it great responsibilities which we assume as our heritage. It is, therefore, our solemn duty to insure the freedom of future generations by working diligently, studying earnestly, and providing leadership in all phases of life.

If we continue to practice the precepts learned from our dedicated teachers and devoted parents, we should be exemplary citizens, responsible adults, and renowned graduates of the Brighton High School.

SPIRIT OF

BRIGHTON HIGH SCHOOL

CLASS OF 1958

CLASS SONG—1958

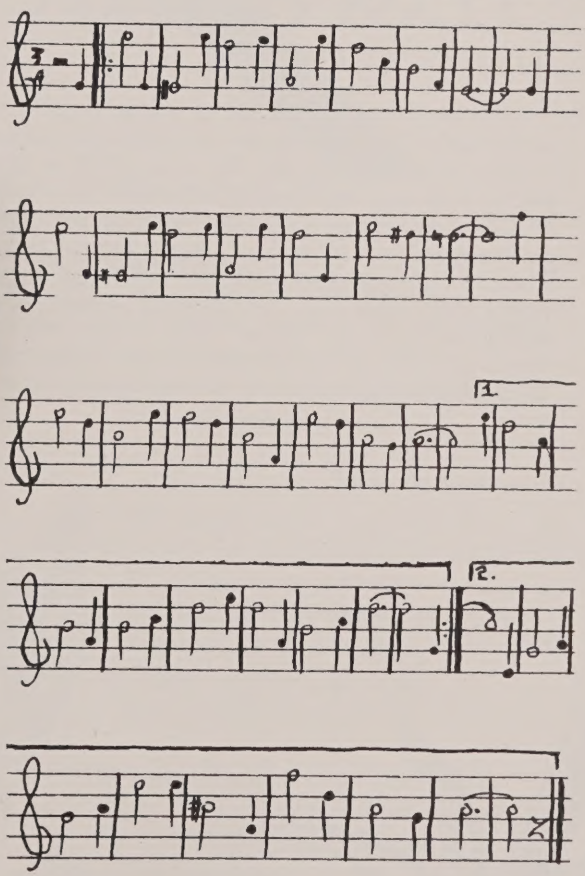
Farewell, farewell, dear Brighton High,
For now we leave your halls
And deeds they tell of days gone by,
But, lo, the future calls.

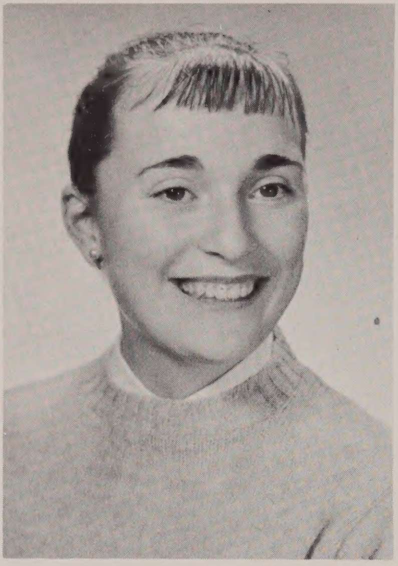
It beckons us away from you,
And from your shelt'ring fold.
We go to face the world outside
And wonders yet untold.

When first we met, but young were we,
Unskilled in use of mind:
But you trained us mature to be,
And life's pathways to find.

Farewell, farewell, O Brighton High,
Farewell to you, adieu.
But in the course of years to come
We will remember you.

MEREDITH AMBROSE
AND MARTIN NEUDEL





ELEANOR LIPANI

CLASS ORATION

Today is Class Day, the day to which we all have looked forward with anticipation, excitement and perhaps a little bit of apprehension. The culmination of three long years of hard rewarding work expresses the meaning of Class Day to most of us. Let us pause and reflect on the importance of this truly wonderful day in our lives. We are simultaneously sad and happy at the significance of Class Day. Sad because it means we shall shortly be leaving our beloved Castle on the Hill, our favorite teachers, and fine friends. Happy because Class Day is the exciting prelude to the ceremony of Graduation.

Yes, Graduation, the time for farewells to Brighton and greetings to our chosen fields of endeavor be it in the business, college or technical domain. We look forward to this time of trying our wings for the first time with confidence and hopefulness; for the present holds great things in store for us.

Space travel and satellites used to be words of the future. Suddenly they have become very real terms of the immediate present. No longer is the world a vast huge place made up of various remote bodies of land and sea. It has shrunk to an incredibly small size. We have made the world tinier in both commercial and martial affairs by jet travel, inter-continental ballistic missiles, and space satellites. We are pushing our boundaries to the very outskirts of the earth's limits. Soon we shall find ourselves lost in the vast, unimaginable realm of space called the universe.

Are we ready to accept the challenge of our present life? The world is at our feet—the need for good men in any chosen profession is great. Hard, conscientious work is all success asks. But all is not speed, space, and rockets. Advances will soon come in the homes, highways, and industrial plants. This is what the future holds for us: There will be new techniques for completing familiar tasks. Pumping water with sunlight, running machines with paper tape, and cracking metal with sound waves are only a few of the proposed changes which we shall see.

Well known materials will have new uses. By combining two familiar materials in a new form the transistor, an original field for electronics, was born. This is just a sample of what has and will come from this exciting process.

There has been a discovery of new surroundings. Ultra high vacuums, strong magnetic fields, and supersonic shock waves will be well-known terms of the future.

In the homes will be a renovated way of running a household. An electronic brain which will completely do away with the chores of a housewife will be standard equipment. The kitchen will hold an ultrasonic washer which will clean clothes by having gentle sound waves rather than agitation dislodge dirt.

On the highways, there will be an unprecedented way of controlling traffic. Electronic control systems located in a metal strip imbedded along the center of each lane of our highways will do away with any unpleasantness associated with driving.

New terms, new fields of endeavor opening everywhere before us. Today is the day we will cast off the bonds of adolescence and enter the world as adults ready to accept whatever life has in store for us.

This entirely new world of 1958 offers a challenge too compelling to be resisted—the challenge of space travel, automation, and atomic power for peace as well as war. And we as the Class of 1958 do hereby accept this challenge to go forth into the world and make for ourselves a better tomorrow.

CLASS POEM

IN COMMEMORATION

HELEN BRIDGES

O Brighton High, we love thee –
   Our lifted voices sing.
We're passing on to Life's hard road
   And all that it may bring.
But looking back we'll not forget,
   Thy echo long recall;
Our eager footsteps pass thy doors,
   To heed the Future's call.

When we as sophomores saw thee
   'Twas three long years ago,
And as we came to know thee
   Our love began to grow;
We kept thee foremost in our minds
   Went onward hand in hand,
That's why we now before thee
   In commemoration stand.

We're here at last as seniors
   In Brighton's Hall of Fame;
Tho' we may forget our lessons,
   We'll ne'er forget thy name,
Brighton, Brighton on the hill,
   Thy towers gleaming bright
Will give us inspiration
   Though dark may be our night.

After our haste to enter
   Life's hard and rugged way,
With misty eyes and loving hearts
   We'll look back on this day.
We'll see the smiles of all our friends,
   Remember each with joy,
Recall with pleasure fond the names
   Of every girl and boy.

A shelter from the stress of Life
   Thy rooms have been each day,
For there we learned of Truth and Right
   To guide us on our way.
Filled with the knowledge of thy love,
   Prepared to meet our Fate
To fight injustice, ignorance,
   The wickedness of hate.

For thou hast been our guidance,
   Hast made every thought so true;
We leave fond mem'ries ling'ring
   Fond memories of you.

CLASS HISTORY

Graduation is here! Our happy high school days of the last three years have drawn to a close. Brighton High will no longer be our school; but our Alma Mater.

Just three short years ago, we, the new recruits, approached with some foreboding but eager anticipation the "Castle on the Hill." Our entrance to the Gothic structure of Brighton High School was two weeks later than we had expected on account of the terrible polio epidemic which had swept Boston. The sincere and hearty welcomes we received from Mr. Leary and the upper classmen soon made us feel at home. The members of the faculty who also entered with us, on this momentous occasion, were Mrs. Rowell, Mr. Fleming, and Dr. Moore. Mr. Oakes returned to Brighton after a long absence, while Mr. Sanford joined us later in the year.

The time flew swiftly by and we were soon an important part of an interesting routine. We took pride in our class "brighlights" Paul McAvoy, Peter Beatty, William Funcheon, Arthur Jones, William Shea, and Richard Sheridan who represented us on the football team.

December brought forth the deeply religious and highly impressive Christmas Pageant under the direction of Miss Maguire and Miss Sullivan. The Talent Show, following in January, was another unforgettable spectacle, featuring such members as Alan Cohen, Roberta Larkin, and Irene Poulos.

As the warmth of spring gradually enveloped us, we became justly proud of John LaFarge who was a prize winner in the Manual of Arms Competition, and Billy Mahoney, who was chosen as the outstanding sophomore in drill. Brian MacPhee also reflected credit on our class when he received a Third Prize Science Award at the Boston Public Schools Science Fair.

Before leaving on our long awaited summer vacation Janet Howells and Irene Poulos were elected as our sophomore cheerleaders. Our representatives on the Student Council were Janet Howells as Treasurer and Chester Soo Hoo as Vice-President.

We deplored the loss of Miss Muir, Miss Rhodes, and our Head Master, Mr. Leary to whom we owe a great deal of credit for their assistance and patience in our first and exciting year as a part of the high school set.

September came upon us with a rush; and now as Juniors we approached "the Castle" with much more confidence and assurance.

Warm welcomes were extended to Mr. M. Henry McInerney on his appointment as our new Head Master. The other new teachers were Mr. Hayes, Mr. Hennessey, Miss Fitzgerald, and Mr. Introini.

This was the year the Orange and Black was to excel in all sports. To our new coach Mr. McCabe a great deal of credit must be given for a finely trained football squad, which tied for the District League Championship.

One of the outstanding highlights of this year was the reception extended to Harold Connolly, a former Brighton pupil, for his outstanding performance in the Olympics.

We bubbled over with pride when our Brighton boys walked away with first prize in the School Boy Parade.

Richard Miller brought further credit to our class by winning first prize in the Brighton High and Boston City Science Fairs. The winner of the Manual of Arms Competition, for this year, was Robert Davis.

With the advent of summer just around the corner Janet Howells was elected President and Vivian Lorenzoni Secretary of the Student Council. John LaFarge was chosen President of the Key Club.

To encourage our teams in the approaching year the sprightly junior cheerleaders were also elected. They included Georgianna Bolton, Carol Brown, Ann Cedrone, Carmine Cugini, Lillian Long, Kathryn Noussee, and Barbara Pineo.

With "See you in September" ringing in many ears we glided off into vacation time.

The "See you in September" farewells of last June, passed into oblivion and "Hello there! Did you have a nice vacation?" —welcomed us as we gathered on the hill.

Now the dignified upper classmen, we regretted to hear that Miss Bailey, Mrs. Brennick, Miss McKissock, and Mr. Lewis had left the surroundings of Brighton High. Nevertheless greetings were extended to the new members of the faculty: Miss Chapin, Mrs. DesAutels, Miss O'Leary, Mr. Gordon, Mr. Rontuccio, Mr. Casey and Mr. Gallagher. Mr. Najarian joined us in January replacing Mr. Fickett, whose retirement was a great loss to the Cooperative course.

Our senior year started off in leaps and bounds. Eleanor Lipani was chosen Editor-in-Chief of the Brighton Towers. Another change in the publication field was that after many years of supervision Miss Marshall relinquished her position as faculty advisor. Miss Gilman, the Head of the English Department, now is responsible for our unexcelled magazine. Vivian Lorenzoni, Rosalyn Lowenstein, Carol MacDonald, and Sheila Williams were chosen Co-Editors of the Gothic.

The various clubs were soon formed. Donald Keating was elected President of the Art Club; Jean Chin of the Biology Club; Samuel Kramer of the French Club; and Virginia Vyres of the Reading Club.

This year on the gridiron we were justly proud of our squad which included such senior members as Co-Captains Arthur Jones and William Shea, Peter Beatty, Richard Butler, Tom O'Connor, Richard Sheridan, William Funcheon, Hartley Sabean, Fred Bolton, Robert Saquet, Francis O'Connell, John Flynn, John LaFarge, Richard Beshere, and James Maguire.

As in the past, the Christmas Pageant was presented to the children at the Kennedy Memorial Hospital. I know from the happy expression on their faces that their cup of joy was more than overflowing.

Two students bringing distinction to our class were Carol MacDonald, who was chosen as the Brighton winner of the Betty Crocker Scholarship Test, and Arthur Jones, who was selected a member of the Boston Traveler Interscholastic Football Team and also our Good Government Day representative.

With competition very keen, the following class officers were elected: John Flynn, President; Arthur Jones, Vice-President; Vivian Lorenzoni, Secretary; Joan Monteith, Treasurer; Carol MacDonald, Historian; and Eleanor Lipani, Orator. Carol Harnish, Sandra Lowre, and Sheila Williams composed our Executive Committee. William Gunning, voted Chief Marshal, was assisted by Helen Bridges, Carol Brown, Jean Chin, Rita Falletti, William Harrington, Barbara Solov, and Donald Ussher.

The following class motto was chosen on January 27—Fidem qui perdit, ultra nil potest—Who loses honor can lose nothing more.

Never shall we forget the two most memorable events of our high school days, Class Day with its fun, tinged with the sadness of our approaching departure, and the Senior Prom with its spell of the enchantment of soft lights, glamorous gowns and sweet music.

An ancient but truthful proverb is that which admonishes that all good times must come to an end sooner or later. And truly so, for this, our senior year, is all but a thing of memory. It has been a most pleasant and wonderful year for us. It will reach its highest peak when we step forward to receive our diplomas on Graduation Day. As we hold the high torch of culture and education, we hope that these days ahead will be as fruitful and beneficial as those "Golden Days" we spent at Brighton High.

Class Prophecy

Here we are, your interplanetary reporters from the Moon Gazette, covering the first reunion of the class of 1958. It is now 2058, just 100 years from that memorable day in June when the people we are about to meet left the halls of Brighton High School to make their way into the "cold, cruel world." Because of many celestial commitments, the class has been unable to assemble at any time previous to this.

We are outside the space castle on the cloud. There is a marked difference in the building from what our guests may remember. This "new look" is John Henry's greatest showing of architectural genius. A moon port has been installed for the teachers, along with a rocket tract for the students. It is now 0845 hours, the sun is shining, and an air of expectation is heavily hanging throughout the planet. Our first arrival is now coming from the Rocket Glide-O-Lator, installed with the compliments of the Steve Peterson Carburetor Contract Company. I think, yes it is, it's the Commissioner of the Atomic Conglomeration Commission, Michael Bucelwicz. Let's see if we can get him to say a few words on that revolutionary new medical discovery, the Missile Magic Serum, that is being so well administered at the Rhoda Lake Sick Center by our interplanetary nurses Jean Chin, Bona La Chance, and Madeline Neri. This serum was concocted at the Bemis Research Laboratories through the efforts of Gorden Hymers in the field of hand-squeezed grape juice. It is guaranted "to put you back in your rocket" in no time. Excuse us, sir, but there are more guests arriving. It's Mike Cusick in his 1958 Rocket Olds'. I see his fondest dream has finally come true. He had us a little worried back in 2000, when he still hadn't gotten it. Thanks to the new Rocket Hop and Hock, he bought it on the space plan. I see that he has some passengers with him. Come on over, and we'll find out who they are: Sybil Kales, still trying to make up her mind, Mary O'Keeffe, secretary to a famed historian, Marion Skrotsky, the not-too-private secretary to our own Mr. Cusick, Dottie Strout, just made president of the Automatic Telephone and Telegraph Company, and Alan Cohen, giving a commercial for Fienz pickles every half hour.

Now, let us go inside to see how the decorating committee is getting along. Space artists Joanne Berardi and Claire Brennan have out done themselves with their superb decorations.

It is now 1930 hours, and we are in the famed school gym. Everyone is here, and the passage of years has dealt kindly with all. Let's listen to the heated discussion going on at the punch bowl on the subject of "homework or no homework" to the pupils of today. Louise Bridger and Carmine Cugini are in disagreement with Vivian Lorenzoni and Carol MacDonald, who have just opened their own nursery school for future Brighton High students. Teaching at the school are "Pinky" Belson and Carol Ann Harnish. The Misses Bridger and Cugini feel that home-lessons are just an unnecessary nuisance to both pupils and teachers, but Viv and Carol have retained their old-fashioned earthly ideas. Here comes Howard Rosenthal, the editor of the "ELECTRIC CURRENT NEWS". He is in constant contact with today's youth. Jack Flynn, president of the senior class of 1958, is also airing his views. Let's listen to what he has to say, since he is now the most popular announcer on WBHS. He is comparing good old down-to-earth music to the new craze, the Jupiter Stomp. Brian MacPhee is also an expert on the subject, since he now has his own stratisvision show on which he names the names and gives the facts.

Moving along we come upon Rita Yokell and Donna Tattan discussing their job as "up in the air hostesses" for the new Neptune Rocket Service. They certainly do those wings justice. They really love their job and feel let down only when back on earth. (That place sounds familiar.) Here is a happy looking group. Jane Dermody, the famous children's nurse, is telling mothers, Shirley Andrews and June Herson who incidentally has her own "Art" gallery, all about the new atomic way of bringing up children. Of course Jane doesn't believe in any of these new-fangled ideas.

Many of our graduates have come back to their Alma Mater to teach. Connie Cuscianna is still calling fouls in the girl's gym; Iris Klein has finally decoded the Pythagorean Theorem and is now trying to get her geometry classes to do the same. George Albee is still passing out gum to his students during an exam; says he feels the chewing relieves the nervous tension. William (Weeper) Ryan is now head-master of the castle and Sylvia Heyman is his secretary.

What seems to be the cause of all the confusion over by the door? Spaceman Frank J. Squadrito is trying to hold back the crowd that has gathered to get a glimpse of the parade of celebrities. Fred "Soupy" Campbell is explaining to Stephen Joseph, now a dentist, and Chet McDonald, civil engineer, how he made his first million. Ken Regan, a billionaire ten times over, is listening with undivided attention. Fred it seemed, has sold tickets to unsuspecting sophomores for the use of the long-forsaken natation hole. Sneaky Fred!

Listen to all the o-o-o-hs and a-a-a-hs over Meredith Ambrose's lovely gown, which she designed herself. Made of Venus Violet Mystic Mist, a new fabric from the looms of the Chesel textile mills, it swirls gracefully around her slender form. Virginia Benson and Carol Kaplan, top models in the Schlottman and Webster model agency, are hoping to wear some of Meredith's creations.

Joe Cavaliere has captivated his audience, as he tells of his trip around outerspace. He won this in a contest sponsored by the Rocket Buy and Bargain, managed by William J. O'Mera.

Richard Miller is now giving his weather forecast for tomorrow. He predicts a possible heavy cosmic storm in the morning, followed by probable afternoon showers, and towards night, a shift into extremely high temperatures. Shaun Bercury disagrees with him, claiming that according to his mathematical calculations, he would predict Hurricane Venus.

Flash!!!!! Admiral Nicky Tourles and Iris Flattes, his secretary, were unable to leave earth because of an out-dates storm . . . . . And now, from the desk of the society editor of the Radiation Press we hear that Sandy Meister has just married her boss in a ceremony performed by Rabbi Martin Neudel . . . . . Jim Sullivan, better known as "Sully", has just received his degree in anatomy at the U. of Spaceville . . . . . Donald Keating is unable to be here with us tonight because he is busily chipping away at one of the moon craters, sculpturing the image of Mickey Mouse for all posterity to see.

At the buffet table, Lois Ellen Herman, who is once again on her diet, is telling Georgeanna Barrett about her work with the famed French physician, Pierre Smada-de-Lis.

Over at the other table are William La Machia and James Maguire, draftsmen for the Ford Plant, owned by Robert Patriquin. Also employed there are Paul Mackie, Fred Rita, Owen Ward, Thomas Pickol, and Charles Kopp. Also in the automotive industry is Ronnie Pommella, who owns his own repair shop.

Dave Garber, hobbling around on crutches because of an injury incurred while he was sliding into first, brought his doctor's secretary, Mary Ann Butera, with him in case any complications set in. Bill Funcheon is still wearing the Triple Crown he won at the Uranus Derby last month, riding Falling Star.

Rita Falletti is now secretary to the legal firm of Cousy, Ramsey, Russell, and last, but by no means least, Rocketfellow, the rich partner. (Poor Fellow.) Of course, they handle only Basketball "suits".

Elliott Cubell has just floated in from space. When asked why he didn't rocket up, he replied that he had started out in a rocket, but en route the external combustion chamber fell off. He immediately radioed to the Lunar Rocket Body Shop, and Tom Nestor came to his rescue. However, it took so long that Elliott decided merely to float in.

Dave Lombardi, the last man to get to the moon, was flagged down by Space Trooper James Webb, who claimed that Dave was traveling too slowly on the Milky Way.

Now our celestial report is finished, and we must hurry to make our spaceline lest Cosmic Editor Eleanor Lipani sends us to cover the robot riots at Betelgeuse.
